EXPEDITIONS

At InFuture, we will be piloting a new program for hackers titled "Expeditions". The idea behind Expeditions is to allow students to explore particular themes within technology and to provide the motivation and support needed to build something amazing. Each hacker will have the opportunity to sign up for an Expedition at the beginning of InFuture. Once registered, they will attend workshops, group sessions, talks, and more related to their particular Expedition. Hackers can work together with others interested in the same Expedition, and even win prizes within their Expedition.

InFuture needs support from your company to make this possible! Your company can run an Expedition on a particular topic within the programming world (e.g. Web Development) and forge a strong connection with the Expedition's hackers. If you would be interested in running or providing prizes for Expeditions, please let us know!
